Article 17. Distinction in a course

1. In official university courses, students who are awarded a final grade of distinction in a course are entitled to an exemption from payment of the fee for teaching-related academic services for the same number of credits as those of the course in which they were awarded this grade.

2. Students of lifelong learning programmes who are awarded a final grade of distinction in one or more courses are entitled to a discount on their next enrolment fee, whether on official or UOC-certified courses.

The amount of the discount will vary based on the number of courses in which the student was awarded a distinction when they complete the programme. If they are awarded a distinction for up to 10 credits' worth of courses, they are entitled to a 15% discount. If they are awarded a distinction for between 11 and 20 credits, they are entitled to a 20% discount. If they are awarded a distinction for more than 21 credits, they are entitled to a 25% discount.

This discount applies to the fees for learning resources and tools, and learning support services in official university courses and to the full enrolment fee in UOC-certified courses, in the next programme in which the student enrolls.

3. In official university courses, the exemption from payment of the fee for teaching-related academic services on the grounds of having obtained a distinction only applies to those teaching credits for which the student has enrolled for the first time in the programme of study or programme in which they were awarded this grade.

4. In official university courses, if the distinction-based exemption cannot be used in combination with a more advantageous exemption to which the student is also entitled, the distinction-based exemption is saved for use in future enrolments for credits with teaching.

For lifelong learning programmes, the discount can be applied only once in the two semesters immediately after the end of the programme and cannot be used in combination with other deductions and/or discounts to which the student may be personally entitled.

5. For official university courses, if a student enrolls in a course with fewer teaching credits than the one in which they were awarded a distinction, the exemption will apply to payment of the fee for the teaching-related academic services for that number of teaching credits, and the difference will be saved so that the exemption can be applied to future enrolments in courses with teaching.

6. If the academic record is closed, the exemption from payment of the fee for teaching-related academic services will be lost.

Chapter II. Enrolment changes

Article 23. Modification of enrolment

1. Enrolment changes:
 - a. In official university courses, enrolment changes are those that involve increasing the number of credits the student has enrolled for, or switching or cancelling courses, provided that the student retains at least one course.
 - b. In UOC-certified courses, enrolment changes are those that involve switching programmes, provided that the enrolment fee is the same or higher.
2. Students are entitled to make changes to their enrolment within the times established in the Campus. Changes may be made to enrolments made during the current enrolment period.
3. When making their first enrolment in an official course at the UOC, students may cancel a single course within the first 15 days of the academic year, provided they attach to the request a supporting statement from their tutor confirming they have an excessive study load.
4. After the end of the first semester of an official course, students who have satisfactorily passed all the courses enrolled in may switch to a different official course and enjoy 100% off the part of the enrolment fee set by the FUOC's Board of Trustees (learning resources and learning support services) during the following semester.
5. At the end of the first semester of a UOC-certified master's degree or postgraduate diploma, students who have satisfactorily passed all the courses enrolled in may switch to a programme with the same or a higher price and enjoy during the following semester 50% off the fee for the credits taken. This change is subject to payment for the credits taken in the first semester.

Article 24. Financial consequences of modifying enrolments

1. Changes involving an enrolment extension involve payment of the fee for the added teaching-related academic services and learning resources in official courses, or the difference in the fees payable for the two programmes in the case of UOC-certified courses.

2. Changes involving switching to a course in the same or another UOC programme will have the following financial consequences:

2.1. Official university courses:

- a. If the student switches to a course with more credits, they must pay the difference between the fees for teaching-related academic services for the new and old courses, as well as the fee for the learning resources and tools for the new course.
- b. If the student switches to a course with fewer credits, the student will be refunded the difference between the fees for teaching-related academic services for the new and old courses, and will pay the fee for the learning resources and tools for the new course.
- c. If the student switches to a course with the same number of credits, they only have to pay for the learning resources and tools for the new course.

2.2. In UOC-certified courses, students switching to a more expensive programme must pay the difference in fees.

3. If the change involves cancelling one or more courses, the fees for teaching-related academic services will be refunded, provided the request is made within the time stipulated by the university.

The fee paid for learning resources and tools will not be refunded. However, when the student re-enrols on the cancelled course, they will not have to pay this amount again, and they will have access to the learning resources and tools so that they can develop the teaching activities.

4. If the cancellation is for reasons attributable to the university as a result of any of the following cases:

- a. If there has been an error in the validation of the enrolment proposal and the course is not graded, the full fee for the course will be refunded. In such case, it is essential to provide a supporting report from the student's tutor or from the director of the programme in which the error occurred before the refund can be made.
- b. If the course has been cancelled because there are too few enrolments and not been replaced, students will receive a refund for the full fee paid for it.
- c. In other cases attributable to the university that have not been included in the above sections, a refund for the full fee paid for the course will be given, if the university deems it appropriate, once proof of the reasons has been provided. In such cases, the university may ask for further documentation in order to assess the situation.

5. In the case of official university courses, in addition to the consequences envisaged in the preceding sections, students who make changes to their enrolment must also pay the modification fee set in the Decree on Public Fees, unless the replacement or cancellation was made for reasons attributable to the university or if a prior supporting statement from the tutor is provided in the first fifteen days of teaching. In UOC-certified courses, the enrolment modification fee set by the FUOC's Board of Trustees will be applied.

6. In addition, in the case of students who request the cancellation of a course because the necessary number of credits to obtain the degree has been reached or the minimum number of credits of a particular type has been exceeded the learning resources and tools must also be returned.

Article 25. Cancellation of enrolment

1. If the enrolment is cancelled after the deadline for exercising the right to withdraw, there will be neither a refund nor an exemption from paying any outstanding amounts.

2. However, the applicable refund will be made if any of the following circumstances arise before the start of the final tests or the delivery date of the last continuous assessment test (in cases in which there are no final tests):

2.1. Death

2.1.1. Students claiming the death of a first-degree relative, a sibling, their spouse or their legal de facto partner will receive a refund for the part of the enrolment fee relating to teaching-related academic services. Students claiming the death of a first-degree relative must provide a photocopy of the death certificate. Students claiming the death of their spouse or de facto partner must also provide a photocopy of the family record book or of the certificate of registration of the de facto union.

2.1.2. If the university is informed of the student's death, the enrolment fee will be refunded in full. In such case, the original or a photocopy of the student's death certificate must be provided.

2.2. Serious illness

2.2.1. Students claiming serious illness of a first-degree relative, a sibling, their spouse or their legal de facto partner will receive a refund for the part of the enrolment fee relating to teaching-related academic services. If the person suffering from the serious illness is a first-degree relative of the student, a photocopy of the medical certificate certifying that the student is unable to continue with their studies, attaching a photocopy of the family record book or of the certificate of registration of the de facto union, must be provided. The illness or symptoms preventing the student from continuing with their studies must have arisen after the time of enrolment. Alternatively, if the illness or symptoms started before the enrolment, proof that the symptoms have got worse must be provided.

2.2.2. If the university is informed of the student's serious illness, the part of the enrolment fee relating to teaching-related academic services will be refunded in full. In such case, a photocopy of the medical certificate, bearing the doctor's signature and medical association number, or a psychological assessment certificate bearing the certified practitioner's signature and association number, and expressly certifying that the student is unable to continue with their remote university studies as a result of their illness and/or medical treatment, must be provided. The illness or symptoms preventing the student from continuing with their studies must have arisen after the time of enrolment. Alternatively, if the illness or symptoms started before the enrolment, proof that the symptoms have got worse must be provided.

2.2.3. Students with high-risk pregnancies will be given the same treatment as those with serious illnesses.

2.3. Victims of gender-based violence

If the student states that they have been victim of gender-based violence by a partner or ex-partner once they have completed enrolment, the fee for teaching-related academic services in the enrolment fees will be refunded.

They can prove their status by submitting the documents detailed in Article 9.2. As to dependent children up to the age of 21, the family record book and a family cohabitation certificate must also be provided.

2.4. In the event of exceptional personal or financial circumstances or events of force majeure, the university must require appropriate supporting documentation, and the Office of the Deputy General Manager (Global Business Development) must decide whether or not to refund the applicable enrolment fee in each case.

2.5. If a student has been assigned to a course at another public university or Spanish public body/institution as a result of a reallocation of places within the relevant university pre-registration process, the following amounts will be refunded provided the enrolment cancellation request is submitted before the deadline stipulated by the UOC:

2.5.1. The full amount of the enrolment fee, except for the academic record and enrolment processing fee, if the request and supporting documents are submitted before the start of the semester.

2.5.2. The fee paid for teaching-related academic services in the enrolment fee if the request and supporting documents are submitted after the start of the semester.

This will not apply in the following cases:

- a. If the student has changed their mind.
- b. If the student pre-registers again at a later date.

3. Refunds for the fee for teaching-related academic services in the enrolment fee, as set out above, will under no circumstance mean that the student does not have to pay the corresponding fee for non-teaching academic services, if they have not done so yet.

4. If the UOC agrees to cancel a student's enrolment in an entire programme for any of the justified reasons set forth in the preceding sections, the student will be entitled to a refund for the amounts relating to the current semester plus the full amount paid for any credits that they have not yet been taught.

5. Students who request the cancellation of their enrolment for justified reasons must provide reasons in their request and attach the relevant supporting documentation. This must be done no later than the date on which they take the final tests or the delivery date of the last continuous assessment test (for courses whose assessment model does not include final tests). Students who, due to incapacity, are unable to request the cancellation in time may do so within the exceptional time of 15 days from the day immediately after their medical discharge.

6. Documentary proof of the circumstances justifying the cancellation of a student's enrolment at their request must be provided through the channels established by the UOC for this purpose.

7. In any event, all the documents provided by the student or their relatives must be dated after the enrolment date or enrolment modification date if applicable.

8. If a student requests the cancellation for justified reasons and provides proof of these before teaching starts, the fee paid for learning resources will also be refunded.

9. In the case of doctoral studies, the student must also request a temporary withdrawal in accordance with the terms of the UOC's doctoral studies regulations to ensure that the academic record remains open.

10. In official university courses, cancelling a student's enrolment without justified reasons before taking the final tests does not count towards the number of times the student can take the test and, if the student re-enrols for the same course or courses, the second enrolment surcharge will not apply and the student will not need to pay for the learning resources for those courses.

11. In UOC-certified courses, students enrolled in programmes with more than one semester of teaching (except language courses) may cancel their enrolment for those semesters that are yet to begin up to fifteen days before the start of the teaching of the second semester of the programme concerned, and no refund or exemption from the fees for the first semester will be given.

Such students will not have to pay the fee relating to the following semesters and, if they have paid a higher amount, they will receive a refund for the difference.

Students who cancel their enrolment must also pay the cancellation fee established by the FUOC.
